The Latest in Crimmigration

Shifting sands—how to traverse the uncertain and ever-changing landscape of the immigration consequences of criminal activity

The President of the United States and the Attorney General have reshaped the immigration landscape. ICE is more powerful than ever. Many, many people are getting swept up in a broadening net of enforcement. Custody is much more common and getting someone out of ICE custody is harder than it ever was before. How many times has your phone rung in your office only to hear the following: “Help! My husband has just been detained by ICE. I don’t know what to do!” A mother, brother, husband, or child has just been detained by Immigration and the family has no idea what to do next. Where is the client? Where will they be taken? What happens next? What are the client’s rights? How do the local jails treat immigration detainees and what are the special visitation policies?

This seminar focuses on some of the fundamentals and a few advanced tips of what to do when your client encounters the immigration consequences of criminal charges. If you represent non-citizen criminal defendants you must attend this seminar.

Mandatory CLE credits

States have varying mandatory CLE credit requirements; individual attorneys are responsible for checking with their particular state CLE accreditation authority about whether and how much credit will be granted. Although MCLE does not pursue state-based credit, MCLE programs are regularly approved in many jurisdictions. It is the responsibility of the individual attorney interested in CLE credit to submit the information and certifications required under the respective state rule to the appropriate state authorities in the jurisdictions in which they seek credit.

Depending on the jurisdiction, lawyers can satisfy their mandatory CLE requirements online with MCLE's webcasts, which feature periodic attendance prompts, online written materials, and the opportunity to receive a certificate of attendance.
