

Protecting Client & Firm Data in the Era of Pervasive Information Piracy

Guarding your client's and firm's personal and financial information

The recent move towards cloud computing and the hybrid workplace, combined with bad actors specifically targeting law firms for their clients' data has forced firms to re-evaluate their approach to cybersecurity. New forms of ransomware and malicious organizations offering "hacking as a service" make it imperative that firms focus on managing their cyber risk. In this presentation, Monroe Horn speaks about new ways firms need to approach cybersecurity and provides specific guidance to help you improve your security posture.

Agenda

- How Security Requirements Are Changing for Law Firms and What That Means for Securing Clients' Information
- Strategies for Creating a Multi-Layered Approach to Cyber Security
- Understanding How Cyber Security Fits into a Firm's Risk Profile
- Managing Data Risk Beyond Cyber Security

Speaker

MONROE (MONTY) HORN is a Principal at TransformITy Solutions LLC in Newburyport. He is a technology innovator who has spent his career selecting and building technology solutions that allow small organizations to compete successfully with places ten to fifty times their size. He has over twenty years of experience in technology leadership as a director and CTO, leading security, operations, financial management, and software development teams.

Firms led by Monty have been acknowledged leaders in the areas of workflow automation, custom application development, master data management, and the paperless office. His Docketing Workflow System has been featured at national conferences and the AIPLA annual meeting. Other applications he developed have been patented (US 8719238 B2) and licensed by both software vendors and other law firms.

Monty has published numerous articles on legal technology and has been a featured speaker at technology seminars in the United States and Europe. He has also held leadership positions in the International Legal Technology Association (ILTA).

Monty earned his BA and MA from Harvard University and was a teacher and author of American history before entering the field of information technology. He currently studies the history of technology and the rise of the Internet.
