Request to MCLE for Reprint Permission

Since all MCLE publications are protected by copyright, any use by an outside party requires permission from both MCLE and the author. Generally, when MCLE grants reprint permission, the scope of use is limited to one article or chapter from a publication. Reprint permission is limited to the scope of the use described in the request; any subsequent use requires a separate request for reprint permission. MCLE reserves the right to assess a small charge for use not directly related to its CLE function.
